Blackwell, in his confession and testimony at the inquest, stated that he had seen his wife drive up to the house in a car with Peter Travis, 751 Kant street, Willard Moody, 112 Evans avenue, and Dr. W. P. Palmer, of 67 South Broadway, all colored. He said that he had become anxious at his wife's absence and had sealed himself on the porch when he saw the car drive up. He told how two of the men had gotten out of the front seat and continued:

"Then out of the back seat steps Moody and my wife. I got up and walked down to meet her. I asked her where she had been. She said, 'What do you ask me that for? You don't care.' I got mad, lost my head and stabbed her."
